WOLVES APPEAR IN SOUTHAMPTON

Several Caught and Are On Exhibition.

CAUSED MUCH DESTRUCTION.

Strong Animals, and Will Eat Nothing Except Raw Meat-No Amount of Beating Will Cause Them -to Make a Sound.

(Special Dispatch to The Times) NEWPORT NEWS, VA., Sept. 19.-Hon. R. O. Deyer, Deputy Internal Revenue Collector for this district, has just returned from his home in Southampton county. He says the people of Southampion county, Va., and Hertf.rd county, N. C., are greatly excited over the appearance of wolves in that section. Fully as many as 100 head of sheep and 200 hogs have disappeared. It was at first thought that they had been stolen, but later a wolf was killed and a den was found in which the bones of many sheep

hogs reposed.

WOLVES KILLED. Since that a number of the wolves have been killed and five have been caught alive in steel traps. Three of these were on exhibition at Courtland Monday. One was bought for $12.50 by Mr. John D. Abbitt, of Southampton, who is trying to domesticate it.

Mr. Deyer describes the animal as a remarkable one with extraordinary large limbs, resembling those of a calf; feet heavily padded and as large as those of a bear; the eyes and mouth of a wolf; cars, and resemble accounts of the colors of the color cars and general appearance those of a hound dog.

MAKE NO SOUNDS.

The animal has not barked, howled, or made any other noise since it was caught, and no amount of beating can elleit a sound from it. Raw meat is the only food it will eat.

only food it will eat.

This is the first appearance of wolves in a hundred years in this section of Virginia and North Carolina, and consequently speculation is rife as to their torigin. The first theory was that they were driven out of the Dismal Swamp by the recent fire, but this has been discarded in favor of a second theory. in favor of a second theory.

Seven years ago a wolf was lost at Weldon, N. C., by a circus. It is believed that these marauders are nothing more than degenerate cross-breeds.

BOARD OF FISHERIES.

Survey Will Add Thousand Acres to Rentable Oyster Grounds. (Special Dispatch to The Times.)

NEWPORT NEWS, VA., September 19.—The Board of Fisheries met here to-day in executive session, with all the members present except Senator George B. Keczell, of Bockingham county. Among others in atttendance were Oyster Inspec-tors E. C. Madlson, of Warwick; R. Wil-lams, of Nansemond; R. E. L. Simmons, of Isle of Wight. Captain Williams came over in his naphtha launch. Present also was Captain W. E. Hudgins, of the fa-mous oyster gunboat Chesapeake. Major E. A. Semple and Mr. A. B. Edmunds, civil engineers, were on hand, and presented the Board with a report of the work of resurveying the State oyster grounds. This job is about half completed. It is the opinion of experts that at least 1,000 acres of oyster ground will be added to the State's rentable domain by the twenty acres and stake it off. Gradually, from the Commonwealth through the instrumentality of what is known as "walking stakes." Some men will rent, say, twenty acres and stake it off. Graudually, in the absence of surveillance, the stakes will creep further and further on until the renter is in possession of about twice as nuch acreage as he originally contracted

The Board, though in session five hours, transacted only routine business.

The Warwick survey will be resumed Monday, when the Chesapeake will be re-lieved by the new launch.

its third annual session here to-day. The address of welcome was delivered by Mr. L. Lazatus, of Lynchburg, while the response was made by the president of the organization, Mr. E. R. Woodward, of Roanoke. Resolutions were adopted de-claring that the manufacture and sale of liquors is as right and honorable as any other pursuit; that the association advocates the amendment or repeal by the Legislature of laws that have a tendency to lower the moral standing of the busi-ness, and make it odious to self-respecting citizens to pursue such a vecation; that members of the association yield to no class in devotion to true temperance and denunciation of drunkenness, vice and crime; that they are unalterably opposed to the present local option laws; that they are opposed to a dispensary system, on the ground that it would bring about a downfall and degradation, and that they favor a reduction of the internal revenue tax from $1.10 to 70 cents

LAMB AND KELLEY.

They Address the Voters of Hanover County-One Case in Court.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.) ASHLAND, VA., September 19.-Interest in the campaign was enlivered to-day at Hanover County Court by speeches delivered by Hon. S. L. Kelley, of Richmond, and Captain John Lamb. County Chairman H. G. Buchanan first introduced the cloquent young orator from Richmond, who, in a half-hour speech, dealt some telling blows against Republicanism telling blows against Republicanism

In closing Mr. Kelley surveyed the politi-cal field, and confidently predicted the success of Bryan and Stevenson. His speech was well received and frequently applauded.

Castain Lamb's speech was more lengthy, and he covered all the issues of the cam-paign more fully. He, however, dwelt with most effect upon trusts, which he handled without gloves. He also made an earnest and powerful appeal to the voters to sup-port the Democratic ticket, Capiain Lamo always receives a hearty welcome by Hanoverians, and his speeches are listened to with earnest and respectful attention.

There were no opposition speeches, and, as a consequence, there were no exciting cidents. In court only one minor case came up for trial. Jerry Wiley (colored) was fined $5 for striking a man who had cursed a

THAT BABY-

Virginia Continues to Attract Attention at the Gentry Show,

That baby pony at the Gentry Show still continues to be the hit of the entertainment, and it doesn't have to do any act either. All the baby does is to 're-main quiet and be looked at, for it is the tiniest mite of horseflesh that has ever been seen in Richmond. Just eighteen inches is the height of the little beauty, while it tips the scales to exactly 17 pounds, and covered all over with a coat of fluffy, sllky, white hair, with pretty brown spots, and then the great, big, in-nocent eyes. But the tail, a suraby little thing, that wags back and forth like a sheep's. Mothers of pretty bables are perhaps the only ones that can truly sympathize with poor Mae, the mother of the colt, who has to stand and see her baby fondled and mauled by crowds of women and children and never make a murmur. The little one was born in Fredericksburg last Monday afternoon, and is unusually small even for a pony colt. Her name is
